

Public Transit: Recovery and Rebuild

Tuesday, September 22

11:10 AM – 12:00 PM

As an essential service, public transit has continued throughout the pandemic and been integral to the Province's Restart Plan. However, in the absence of fare recovery, transit communities have been hit with devastating financial losses. Recently the federal government announced $19 billion to provinces, in part to support public transit.

This workshop will focus on the next steps needed to help communities recover from financial losses and rebuild public transit in BC. Working in partnership with the Province, and key transit agencies, local governments will learn more about what a provincial transit recovery and rebuild strategy might look like and how to make the public transit system more nimble and responsive to future crises.